In that branch of our shipping which is protected (the coasting trade) there are vessels engaged. In the unprotected branch (the foreign trade) only vessels can find employment. Such are the different results of Free-trade and Protection in the shipping industry.

This talk about one man or another as the "logical" candidate of the Republican party for President in 1896 is a mild and harmless variety of mid-winter nonsense.

It is all right for Mr. Cleveland to go into the pine woods of New Jersey to prepare his inaugural address, but he can hardly hope to be free even there from the importunities of the office-seekers.

The value of pig iron produced in this country, said a prominent operator the other day, is greater than that of gold, silver and copper combined. The value of the coal product is greater than that of pig iron, and the value of silver produced is less than a sixth of the above products.

If reports are correct, the Whisky Lobby has a quiet but strong and able ally at work in Washington to procure legislation increasing the tax on whisky. It is really generous of this monopoly to urge an increase of the taxation on its own product. But the poor consumer—he pays the freight.

The Boston Herald revives the story of the encounter between General Butler and "Sunset" Cox. The former, after being subjected for some time to the latter's witty annoyances, suddenly waived his hand and exclaimed: "Shoo, fly; don't bother me!" Mr. Cox sat down and looked as if he felt that Mr. Butler had set down on him. The "bother" was not resumed.

The London Times—which is always reliable on American matters—comments thus upon the last report of the U. S. Pension Commissioner: This inflation of the pension list, with all its concomitant abuses, is a direct outcome of the McKinley tariff. It is to be hoped that the Democrats will be under no such temptation to continue squandering illegitimate surpluses in now lost illegitimate inflation.

Now, let The Times tell its readers that the McKinley bill causes all the fogs in London.

It is a striking fact that our exports to the very countries whose products have been the most effectively barred from our markets by Protection have grown immensely far more than their exports to this country. In 1890 all Europe sold us to the value of $216,680,000, and bought of us to the value of $241,280,000. In 1892 Europe's sales to this country had grown to $291,630,000, but we sold to Europe domestic merchandise valued at $541,000,000 in the same year. That is, while our purchases were increasing $174,280,000, our sales grew $599,860,000.

The Chicago Journal, which is owned and controlled by Thomas W. Palmer, President of the World's Fair Commission, is out with a strong editorial favoring the Sunday opening of that great Exposition. In part the editorial is as follows:

It is difficult to see on what principle of justice or fair play the Sabbatharian advocates can demand the closing of the World's Fair on Sunday.

The Constitution of the United States and the whole tradition of the legislation and the Government of the United States forbid Congress to pass laws favoring or promoting the religious views of any person or set of people. To enforce the observance of Sunday by prohibiting what is not only harmless, but of great mental and moral advantage to thousands of people, is a violation of the spirit, if not the letter, of the Constitution.

COLD WEATHER IN GEORGIA.

We're a-sneakin' an' a-sneakin' an' a-sneakin' fit to kill. An' coal has reached the color of a green five dollar bill. An' we'll soon be burnin' of the bricks, an' warm in the stones; It's the toughest time we ever struck, from Billie clean to Rome.

O, for one breath of summer across the icy hills To warm the rheumatism, an' thaw the frozen stills! Won't never say "this weather's hot!" for brimstone would be nice 'Longside this here shiverin' spell of Georgia snow an' ice.

PROFESSOR(?) GRANGER did not send to the press any tickets for his mind-read in entertainment. Guess he thought they'd "roast" him. It's a good thing the river was frozen, or he might have had a chance to read his own mind while he took an involuntary bath at the hands of his outraged audience.

THE poverty-stricken company which owns the Suspension Bridge at Cincinnati, by employing the Hercules Cartel and large force of men, succeeded in cutting a channel through the ice from the Lick to the Southern Bridge, in order to prevent the laboring men of Covington who work in Cincinnati from crossing on it that it might freeze from each of them the three cents toll.

The Check Racket Tried Once Too Often in Maysville—Captured While Hunting for Victims.

Notwithstanding the fact that Maysville seemed a fruitful and apparently safe field in which to work the bogus check racket, a would-be manipulator was veritably caught in the act last night by Marshal Fitzgerald and Officer Downey.

He was captured about 8 o'clock at the shoe store of J. H. Pecor, where, after having bargained for a pair of shoes he tendered in payment therefor a State National check for $19, payable to William Vaughn and signed by W. C. Dietrich, who keeps a livery stable at Aberdeen.

The suspicions of Officer Downey had become aroused earlier in the evening concerning the fellow when he came into the grocery store of Mrs. O'Mara on Market street and asked for a blank check. Downey watched him and he shortly afterwards went into M. C. Russell & Son and asked for Barbour Russell. That gentleman was not in and the man then let it be known that he wanted a check cashed. He was referred to Mr. Russell, Sr., who refused to even look at the paper.

Marshal Fitzgerald was sent for by Downey, and the two followed him down Market to Second street and went to Court, where he took a look into the State National Bank and came back up Second and into the house of Mr. Pecor. The officers managed to let Mr. Pecor know of their suspicions and also advised him to make any bargain the fellow might ask, especially to cash a check if one was tendered.

After picking out a pair of shoes he tendered a check as above described. W. Pecor offered to accept the check and asked the man to endorse it. He said that he could not write, and also gave the information that his name was William Estill, while on the body of the check was written William Vaughn.

The two officers who were in waiting stepped in and took hold of Mr. Vaughn. Estill about this time, and it was not long before he was behind the bars. A search revealed four checks in all—three on the Bank of Maysville and one on the State National. All were for the same amount, $19, and all made payable to William Vaughn and signed by W. C. Dietrich.

He tried to get away with some of his surplus checks when captured, but was detected. He had no money, but possessed a rather good watch.

He stoutly claims his innocence of any wrong-doing, and says the checks were given him by Mr. Dietrich in good faith. The latter gentleman could not be communicated with last night.

Vaughn-Estill says he is from Paris. He is of a respectable appearance, of medium height and build and smooth face.

He will have a hearing before Mayor Pearce this morning.

CITIZENS of Huntington are loudly clamoring for a new Courthouse.

By all means let us have an electric railway to Mt. Olivet. The Tribune Democrat of August 25th, 1892, reached this office only yesterday, but it came up smiling.

WHAT good will brick streets do us after we are laid away in the Cemetery? The present generation has paid largely of railroad debts which our forefathers contracted, why shouldn't we live, anyway, and on $100,000 at 95 it will be cheaper than the never-ending expense and never-bettering system.

POINT DEXTER BUSH, 14 years old, of Mt. Sterling, had his brother's pistol, a 35-caliber, looking at it, when a little girl whom his father had taken to raise up, approached to the window from the back porch and said: "Deck, put that pistol down; you can't hit anything," and he looked down, and seeing the cylinder without a ball, thought it was not loaded, and taking dead aim, pulled the trigger, discharging the weapon, the ball penetrating the forehead, killing her instantly.

WEDDED AT ABERDEEN.

Marriage of Elbert Stephens of Frankfort and Miss Maude Wilson.

The next little Methodist Church in Aberdeen was brilliantly lighted yesterday afternoon, and there was a large assembly of the good people of the pretty village.

Ten days ago invitations had been sent out announcing the marriage of Elbert Stephens of Frankfort and Miss Maude, daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. B. B. Wilson, and the friends of the parties had gathered to witness the ceremony.

J. P. Ellis presided at the organ, and shortly after 2 o'clock the notes of Mendelssohn's Wedding March proclaimed the approach of the bridal party.

Preceded by the ushers, Messrs. D. A. Ellis, Augustus Sorries, Martin Smith and Thomas McDaniel, who marched two and two, the bridesmaids, followed on one side by the attendants, Frank Byrne of Maysville and Miss Lottie Wilson, sister of the bride, and on the other by the bride and groom, the wedding party marched into the Church and took their places on the rostrum, the handsome couple forming the central figures of a splendid group.

The bride's dress was white silk tulle and lace. She carried an exquisite bunch of Calceyia Mermet roses.

Miss Lottie Wilson was dressed in pink crepe de chene. She carried Marshal Neil roses.

The Pastor of the Church, the Rev. T. W. Williamson, took his position in front, and following the beautiful ritual of the Church, with the exception of that portion relating to the wedding ring, pronounced the solemn and impressive ceremony that made them man and wife, the organ, meantime, rendering Schumann's "Tranquille" in soft tones.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal party and a few intimate friends repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, where congratulations and good wishes were extended.

The groom is an employee of the Capital Printing Company at Frankfort, and his bride one of the fairest daughters of our neighbor village.

Now is the Time to Invest—Let Everyone Be Liberal in a Cause So Worthy of Consideration—The Lord Loveth a Cheerful Giver.

Liberal responses continue to be made to the call for charity. Nearly $200 in money, besides clothing, food, fuel, &c., have been contributed, and the work of distribution has been pushed vigorously.

The committee which has charge of the distribution has been organized by electing W. LaRue Thomas President and J. T. Kackley Secretary and Treasurer. The other members of the committee are: G. W. Geisel, R. K. Hofflich, M. M. Lane, F. R. Hanson, L. R. Gilmore, George S. Hancock, Marshal Fitzgerald, Edward Smith, colored.

Much good has already been done in the way of relief. While the weather has moderated many persons are in even more destitute circumstances than before the recent cold spell, and a recurrence of the zero weather would cause more suffering than before.

Be liberal and prompt with your contributions and let the work continue.

Contributions may be left at THE LEDGER office, with the assurance that they will be applied where they will do the most good.

How Good the Battle? The gossip end of The Commercial Gazette gives this of local interest: Captain A. C. Respass, ex-Postmaster of Maysville, Ky., but now a traveling whisky agent, was the first Monday on business, but, as a prominent Kentucky Democrat, cannot resist the impulse to say a few things on politics, so he predicted: "Colonel Lindsay will be the successor of Carlisle in the U. S. Senate, and he ought to be, as he is the bristliest man we have had for the place since the death of Beck." Captain Respass says he is not a candidate for Postmaster again, and is not a candidate for U. S. Senator, but is one of three active candidates for U. S. Senator. One of them is T. J. Chonoweth, a druggist, and all-time Democrat. Robert Lovell, a grocer, is another aspirant, and the one who is doing the most hustling is M. F. Marsh, editor of The Maysville Bulletin. One thing in favor of Marsh is that he has always been a Democrat, and is now a member in Grover Cleveland. Congressman W. H. Penner will make the man, and the contest for Penner's seat will be a very close one from the start. The office pays $1,500 a year.
